SALE OF THE EFFECTS OF THE LATE DUKE OF SUSSEX.—The following is a correct statement of the amount realized by the property of his late Royal Highness recently sold by Messrs. Christie and Manson:—Plate and plated articles, 20,752*l.* 15*s.* 5*d.*; decorative furniture, 3,984*l.* 1*s.* 6*d.*; trinkets, rings, and seals, 2,473*l.* 2*s.*; snuff-boxes and bonbonnières, 2,238*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.*; clocks and watches, 1,994*l.* 5*s.*; swords, pistols, and sticks, 1,092*l.* 1*s.* 6*d.*; pipes, tobacco, and cigars, 3,617*l.* 9*s.* 6*d.*; bijouterie, 802*l.* 1*s.* 6*d.*; miniatures and pictures, 759*l.* 1*s.* It will be seen from this list that the total exceeds 38,000*l.* A paragraph has been going the round of the papers to the effect that the King of Naples has made an offer for the late Duke's valuable books and manuscripts now in process of valuation by Messrs. Evans of Pall-mall. The report is entirely destitute of foundation, no such offer having been either received or anticipated. It may also be stated that there is very little reason to suppose that the books will be purchased by the Government for the British Museum, inasmuch as that library already contains duplicates and triplicates of some of the most valuable works in the late Duke's collection.
